

Foreign Travel Abroad By U.S. Citizens

Foreign travel abroad by U.S. citizens can pose significant underwriting challenges unless you are well versed in the topic. There are a number of factors that can impact the success of these cases.

Below is a short list of the more important variables you will want to gather to insure the completion of such a case.

- What country/countries does the insured travel to?
- How often, how long and to what locations does the insured go?
- Does the insured travel with security while in the country/countries?
- What type of business is the insured involved in?
- What is the insured's occupation?
- What is the insured's income?
- Does the insured have plans on traveling overseas in the next 12 months?
- If the travel is not for business, what is the reason for the travel abroad?

These cases tend to be larger than the average case and require special handling and expertise. We can bring this knowledge to the table and help you get these cases across the finish line.

Every Case Counts. Every Broker Matters.
